

M20

M20 is a private residence in the Nevada desert, designed as a sculptural yet efficient space. Starting with a simple rectangular mass, the structure was split and rotated to form a central courtyard, bringing views, natural light, and airflow to every room. Inspired by slot canyons, deep-set chamfered wall details and operable glazing frame the landscape, seamlessly merging indoors and out, reducing the need for artificial light and cooling. Battered walls extend from the façade to the interior, creating dynamic spatial experiences, while transparent corridors and pocket gardens invite the desert into the home, enhancing thermal stability and site connection.
